Selling Produce in Malawi

Submitted by kdad on July 31, 2014

Farmers in Mlumbe Village in Malawi prepare some of their produce for market. Feed the Future's Wellness and Agriculture for Life Enhancement (WALA) project integrates conservation agriculture, small scale irrigation, watershed management, and commercial marketing to raise incomes and ensure food security. Mlumbe farmers said the new techniques helped their crops survived a three-week drought. Photo by Sharon Ketchum, U.S. Mission to the UN Agencies in Rome
